Description

A Lovely Antique Victorian Ceramic Serving Dish supported by an elegant silverplate stand with turned columns and ball feet. Vividly painted red roses and blue forget-me-nots encircle the dish, giving it a lively yet graceful appeal. The soft ivory glaze complements the floral hues, enhancing the vintage warmth of the piece. The silver plated lid features delicate etched detailing with repeating patterns surrounding a sculptural flower finial – circa 1890 * Originally designed as a condiment pot, bonbon dish, or small preserve jar, it also makes a delightful jewellery holder or decorative accent. Measurements: Height: 4 1/4" (approx. 11cm) Diameter of base: 6" (approx. 15cm) Diameter top of dish: 5" (approx. 12.5cm) Total weight: 836g In good condition – There are no chip or cracks to the ceramic dish. The lid fits well, and all components remain sturdy and intact. Perfectly suited for display or use.
