Description

The ring is 18kt white gold with Palladium with beautiful setting and near colourless glittering and fire filled diamonds. Palladium is a relative of Platinum and more expensive by far than gold or Platinum. When added to 18kt yellow gold it turns the gold permanently white and so the ring does not need to be re-plated with Rhodium regularly as is usually the case with white gold. In addition the Palladium is the most hard wearing and so the shank will not deplete with wear. The Palladium gives a natural white gold colour unlike Platinum which can look a little steel grey in colour. Size L and with a lovely heart shaped gallery. The centre diamond is round and brilliant cut, 'F' in colour with lots of sparkle and fire and the surrounding brilliant cut diamonds are colour grade 'F to G'. Total diamond weight is 0.35 of a carat and weight is 3.80 grams. Valuations and Jewellery report purchased from the World Gemological Institute and this will be provided to the purchaser. The value of the ring is £1,600. A very dazzling and beautiful ring, size K.5, at a price of just £900 inclusive of presentation ring box and free fully insured next day delivery to any UK address.
