Description

An impressive and finely worked brass floor lamp, distinguished by its richly pierced, tapering column and exceptional decorative detail. The tripod base rises from a stepped plinth and is elaborately cast with scrolling foliate and floral motifs in high relief, demonstrating skilled craftsmanship and careful chasing throughout. Classical mouldings and beaded accents articulate the shaft, which incorporates an adjustable column allowing for variation in height, and terminates in a slender stem designed to support a shade. Electrified for modern use, the lamp is fitted with a discreet foot-operated switch positioned at the base for convenience. A striking and sculptural example.
