Description

A 19th century brass mounted rosewood campaign dressing box with accessories. Key absent. The brass banded rosewood box has a monogrammed cartouche to the lid with brass inlaid escutcheon of the same design. The lid opens to reveal a removable self-standing mirror inset within the lid and multiple compartments. The set includes two glass scent bottles, one of which is sealed closed but retains vintage beads, and a vintage bone handled Maw, London 'Pure Badger' bristled toothbrush. There is some attractive foxing to the mirror plate and some lights of wear commensurate with age throughout but generally the whole remains in a very good condition throughout.
