Description

A fine quality 19th century carved mahogany Chippendale-style display cabinet, richly detailed and beautifully proportioned, showcasing exceptional craftsmanship throughout. The cabinet features a shaped and pierced scrolling cresting above a moulded cornice, leading to a pair of glazed panel doors with finely carved tracery framing. The interior is fitted with shelving ideal for displaying books, porcelain, or decorative objects, offering both elegance and practical storage. The lower section is raised on bold carved cabriole legs terminating in traditional lion paw feet, united by an ornate carved apron centred with a shell motif - a hallmark of the Chippendale tradition. The warm mahogany timber displays a deep, mellow patina, enhancing the cabinet's refined presence. This is a substantial and impressive piece, perfectly suited to a period interior, country house setting, or as a statement cabinet within a contemporary home seeking classical contrast. Condition: In very good antique condition, structurally sound and ready for use, with expected age-related wear consistent with a genuine 19th century piece. Dimensions: Height: 240cm Width: 110cm Depth: 36cm
