Description

A truly enchanting Edwardian diamond cluster ring, beautifully crafted in rich 18ct yellow gold with a platinum-topped setting, dating to around 1910. Designed in the timeless "daisy" style, this elegant ring centres upon a sparkling old European cut diamond, surrounded by eight matching old cut diamonds arranged in a refined floral halo. The diamonds are delicately millegrain set in platinum, enhancing their brilliance and lending exquisite definition to the setting. The cluster sits proudly above a graceful scalloped gold basket, flowing into fine knife-edge shoulders that create a wonderfully slender and flattering profile upon the hand. A superb example of Edwardian craftsmanship, full of romance and period charm, this ring is in excellent condition and would make a truly memorable engagement ring.
