Description

For your consideration is this extremely rare and very enchanting porcelain bisque cigarette holder match striker dating to the 1930s and sourced in France. Depicting a flapper girl sat holding a fan short vessels that operate as cigarette holder. She's dressed in the fashion of the day with a crimped bob haircut. The attention to detail is just wonderful, so skillfully painted, from her slightly blushed cheeks to her dress, everything about this piece screams quality and at every angle she looks amazing. Behind the figure is an unpainted vanish area which is made for striking a match. Her dress works as an ashtray, of course it can also be used as a pin tray or card holder for modern day use. She's larger than usual and so makes a great piece for display. This is one of our personal favourite pieces, she won't disappoint and comes in great condition free from any damage or restoration.
