Description

We are very excited to present a coveted antique Ouroboros snake gold split ring. This unique piece is a must-have for your collection! Made from solid 9ct gold, it features a 20mm diameter and an engraved band, making it a historic way to combine and arrange various pendants and charms. The ouroboros is a symbolic representation originating in ancient Egyptian and Greek iconography. It depicts a snake or dragon swallowing its tail, signifying concepts like eternity, cyclical, and the continuous cycle of creation and destruction. Don't miss the opportunity to add this highly desirable Georgian split ring to your antique jewellery collection, featuring exceptional wearability and countless styling options! METAL 9ct Gold MEASUREMENTS Measures 20mm across Measures 2mm wide WEIGHT 1.3 grams CONDITION This Georgian solid Gold split ring is in good condition. The snake's head is worn down, and the split ring is misshapen, with slight thinning (please study the pictures). However, we couldn't pass up the opportunity to offer this piece, as it's very hard to find a snake split ring. This rare and highly collectable piece of Georgian jewellery will make a superb addition...
