Description

This bright vibrant panel is mounted in a silver and gold frame decorated around its perimeter with raised gold beads and delicate silver scrolls. At the back of the brooch, the tablet is secured and protected with a bronze back plate held in place with a crimped edge. The brooch has a hinged nickel pin and a fine gold safety chain for extra security. Nickel was often used on quality brooches of this period because of its strength and durability. The brooch is in excellent original condition with no damage or restoration and comes with a fabulous Victorian maroon leather covered hinged box with a blue silk and velvet interior with bold gilt lettering for the retailer and jeweller Morath Brothers of 71 Dale Street, Liverpool. Height 2cm x width 3.8cm x depth 0.8cm.
