Description

A charming early 20th-century glazed bookcase or small drinks cabinet, dating to the Edwardian period. Crafted in solid wood with a warm, rich tone, the cabinet features an elegant shaped top and a single glazed door with delicate arched glazing bars, giving it a light and refined appearance. Inside, the cabinet offers two display shelves, ideal for books, glassware, collectibles or decorative pieces. The proportions make it particularly versatile perfect for a hallway, living room, study or dining area as a compact bookcase or stylish drinks cabinet. The piece stands on gently shaped legs, adding to its traditional character while remaining visually light. Very good antique condition. Structurally sound and stable. There are visible signs of age-related wear to the wood and interior consistent with use over time, which enhance the cabinet's authentic character. Glass panels intact. Clean and presentable overall.
