Description

A charming pair of late Victorian dining chairs, dating to the turn of the late 19th century. Crafted in solid wood with elegant shaped backs, the chairs feature button-tufted upholstered backrests framed by gently carved wood and finished with decorative trim. The seats are generously padded and upholstered in a neutral fabric, making them both comfortable and versatile. The chairs stand on turned front legs with original castors, with swept rear legs that give them a refined, balanced stance typical of the period. Their proportions make them ideal as dining chairs, occasional chairs, or statement seating in a bedroom or hallway. Seat height: 44 cm Very good antique condition. Frames are solid and stable throughout. There are visible, light signs of age related wear to the wood consistent with use over time, which add to the character. Upholstery is clean, intact and well presented.
