Description

A most attractive 18th Century Worcester porcelain blue and white bowl. It is painted in underglaze blue with 'the Precipice' pattern, depicting a bridge separated by two pavilions, one on a high precipice. The interior also depicts a further pavilion between two precipices. It has a workman's mark to the base. In excellent condition, with no cracks, or restoration. It only has a few fine surfaces scratches to the interior from usage and a minute chip on the bottom of the base. It also a small feint brownish stain in the interior of the bowl and the smallest of spots of missing glaze again mentioned for accuracy.
