Description

A charming antique wooden tea trolley dating from the early 20th century, featuring elegant barley-twist legs, a removable serving tray, and original castors. This well-proportioned piece combines practicality with classic period character, making it ideal for use as a tea trolley, drinks trolley, or decorative side table. The trolley is constructed from solid wood with a warm, rich patina developed over time. The upper tray lifts off easily and can be used independently for serving, while the lower shelf provides additional storage. Decorative hand-painted floral details remain visible on the tray, adding a subtle decorative touch typical of the period. The original castors allow the trolley to move smoothly and confirm its authenticity. The structure is solid and stable, and the piece is ready for immediate use. Very good antique condition. Structurally sound and stable. Original castors present. Light surface wear, small marks, and patina consistent with age and use, all visible in the photographs and adding to the pieces character.
