Description

A characterful antique octagonal table crafted from solid oak, featuring a well-proportioned top with gently chamfered edges and a turned-leg base united by a shaped stretcher. The warm tone of the timber and classic silhouette place this piece firmly within the late Victorian period. The octagonal top displays attractive grain and natural variation, while the turned legs add elegance and visual rhythm. The table is solid and stable, making it suitable as an occasional table, lamp table or compact centre table in a traditional or eclectic interior. Very good antique condition. Structurally sound and sturdy. Visible age related wear to the surface and edges as shown in the photographs, including light marks and patina consistent with use over time. These signs of wear enhance the table's authentic antique character.
