Description

An Edwardian era solid silver figure of an apostle or saint with clear hallmarks for London 1908 and makers mark for Maxfield & Sons. The finely modelled and cast silver figure features a berobed and bearded man holding a bell and an open book. Emerging from his cloak is an animal, looking like a small pig. The front of the pedestal base is adorned with a silver camel. The pedestal base is made of black lacquered wood. This charming figure could be a journeying preacher — from my research of animals associated with saints it could be St Anthony Abbott (pig and bell) or St Aphrodisius (camel). More likely the former. In excellent condition, no damage. Weight including loaded base 7oz/220 gr. Height of silver figure above pedestal 9cm.
