Description

A charming late 19th-century English watercolour depicting a tranquil village scene, with cottages nestled beneath mature trees and figures gathered by a horse-drawn cart. Executed in soft, earthy tones, the composition has a gentle, pastoral quality typical of the period, with delicate washes and fine detailing lending depth and atmosphere. The watercolour is presented in an attractive gilded frame with a wide cream mount, which complements the warm palette of the painting beautifully. Light age-related toning to the mount is consistent with age and adds to its character.
