Description

A beautiful pair of antique wooden dining chairs dating from the late 19th to early 20th century, featuring elegant shaped backs with a refined central carved detail and gently turned front legs. The warm-toned wooden frames display a lovely aged patina, enhancing their traditional character and period charm. Both chairs are upholstered in a decorative patterned fabric in soft pastel tones, which is in excellent condition clean, well-padded and ready for use. The frames are solid and stable, with visible signs of age-related wear to the wood, consistent with genuine antique pieces and adding authenticity rather than detracting from their appeal. These chairs would work beautifully in a traditional dining room, bedroom, hallway or as occasional accent chairs in a classic or eclectic interior. Very good antique condition. Strong, stable frames with visible signs of age-related wear. Upholstery in excellent condition. Structurally sound and ready to place and enjoy.
