Description

A very useable and sound office chair from the early 1900s by Simpoles, a Manchester cabinet maker and supplier of nice quality furniture from the latter end of the 19th Century. This is in tidy and what seems to be pretty original condition. We have given this a clean and rewaxing in our workshops and it is now ready for a new life. The seat has been recently reupholstered in an antique hide and it has been close studded around the outside. This really adds to the appeal of this open arm desk chair with the cabriole leg and nicely turned stretchers. The well shaped arms display good graining from the quarter sawn oak clearly showing the medullary rays on the arm tops. A sensible price for a good example. Give us a call to discuss 01565 874075.
