Description

A well-proportioned Antique George III mahogany centre table, standing on a finely carved tripod base with elegant cabriole legs terminating in bold claw feet. The circular top is attractively shaped with a scalloped outline and a subtle moulded edge, lending both movement and refinement to the design. The mahogany displays a rich, warm tone with an appealing patina, highlighting the quality of the timber and the confident late 18th-century craftsmanship. Of practical and versatile scale, this table is well suited for use as a centre table, lamp table, or occasional table, fitting comfortably into both classic and contemporary interiors. Condition In very good antique condition. The table is solid and stable throughout, with no structural issues. The top shows light surface marks and gentle colour variation consistent with age and use, all of which add to its authenticity and character.
