Description

Antique 20th century fine quality Jacobean-style oak sideboard, a striking and highly decorative piece of the finest craftsmanship. Very well made with solid construction, this sideboard displays exceptional attention to detail throughout and is a rare and desirable example of the Jacobean revival style. The piece features a raised gallery to the top, beautifully carved with highly detailed decoration. To the centre are two cupboards, one on either side, with the left-hand cupboard containing a single internal shelf. Running down the centre are three drawers, all framed with beautiful geometric mouldings typical of the Jacobean style, which are also echoed on the cupboard doors. The sideboard is stood on bobbin-turned legs with a supporting stretcher, enhancing its bold architectural presence. It retains its original knob handles and comes with a key. The oak shows gorgeous grain and rich golden colour throughout, further highlighting the quality of the piece. In great condition and very well made, this is a rare and highly desirable sideboard that would make a perfect addition to any home, offering both impressive visual appeal and practical storage.
