Description

Mid-Century Signed Michael Lyne Framed Hunting Drawing “American Foxhounds” – Pencil & Chalk Sporting Artwork Overview A superb original mid-century English sporting drawing by Michael Lyne (1912–1989), titled “American Foxhounds.” This collectible work is hand-signed by the artist in the lower corner and presents a classic foxhunting scene full of movement and atmosphere. Executed in pencil & heightened with white chalk highlights on paper, it is mounted behind glass and housed in its original oak frame. Subject and Medium The composition depicts a master of the hunt on horseback, bugle raised, with a lively pack of American Foxhounds working a scent trail. Lyne’s confident linework and understanding of equine and canine anatomy create a scene that feels immediate and authentic c1950. Composition and Technique Lyne anchors the drawing around the mounted huntsman, using flowing lines and careful spacing to guide the eye through the pack. The pencil work provides control and crisp definition, while the chalk accents add contrast and depth—lifting details such as the horse’s form, the rider’s clothing, and the hounds’ coats. The result is an evocative piece of traditional...
