Description

A striking Irish side table dating to the late Georgian period. The table is made from Cuban mahogany which shows in the weight. It has a heavily carved base to all four sides, it sits on ball and claw feet and has one piece top with a scalloped edge. The drawer has its two original brass tear drop handles and internal dividers with it originally likely being a table made for jewellery storage. In very good solid condition with some light age related wear. Width - 71cm Depth - 48cm Height - 74cm
