Description

A charming and beautiful impressionist oil painting on board of water lily and lily pads and flowers on a pond or lake in a later frame. Most likely painted in Normandy France C1900 to 1950 at the house of Claude Monet by an impressionist artist of Claude Monet's circle. The water lilies and lily pads were a major factor of Monet's garden and numerous famous artists would visit Claude Monet at his Normandy home and paint with him. This particular oil painting sketch has aged with patination, that could possibly be cleaned by a professional restorer if required. Although, its age is part of the paintings charm. This oil painting on board is almost certainly an impressionist artists sketch for a later full oil on canvas in our opinion, which of course many impressionists, especially from France did in the 1900's Impressionism era, including Claude Monet and Picasso etc. The gilded rococo frame was an obvious later addition, which doesn't complement this beautiful impressionist oil painting sketch. MEASUREMENTS OF OIL PAINTING ONLY: Width : 60cm Height : 50cm
