Description

A charming early 20th-century mahogany carver chair, featuring an elegant curved top rail and a decorative crossed back splat. The chair stands on turned front legs with shaped rear supports, typical of Edwardian. The seat is upholstered in a floral patterned fabric, in very good vintage condition, well-padded and comfortable. The gently shaped arms and supportive back make this chair ideal as a desk chair, occasional chair, or accent piece in a traditional or eclectic interior. The mahogany frame is solid and stable, with a warm, well aged patina. Minor signs of age and use are visible, including small surface marks and wear consistent with age, all clearly shown in the photographs. Seat height: 44 cm Very good antique condition. Structurally sound and sturdy. Upholstery clean and presentable. Light age related wear to the wood, commensurate with age.
