Description

A Nice Antique Edwardian Scent Bottle featuring a deeply cut diamond lattice design with crosshatch panels that catch the light brilliantly from every angle. Its rounded silver cap is especially eye-catching, engraved with a classical-style double portrait of two cherub faces in profile. The bottle opens to reveal a fitted silver collar and a removable stopper insert, all intact and original to the piece. * An exquisite example of Edwardian luxury, this bottle would have once graced a well-appointed dressing table, used to decant perfume or scented oils in refined surroundings. Measurements: Height: 6 1/2" (approx. 16.5cm) Diameter of base: 2 3/4" (approx. 7cm) Total weight: 400g Condition is excellent for age, with the glass free from cracks or chips and the silver displaying only minor surface marks consistent with careful handling.
