Description

Here's a lovely 1920s partly glazed display cabinet, full of character and in very nice condition for its age. It features two doors with glazed upper panels and stands on bun feet at the front with square block feet at the back. Inside, there are currently three shelves, and as they're not fixed, they can be rearranged to suit your needs. The doors open fully, which is especially useful if the cabinet is being placed somewhere a little tight for space. The top is flat, with a small groove detail typical of pieces from this period, which can be filled if preferred. If placing the cabinet into an alcove, just be aware that when the doors open to around 90°, they extend slightly beyond the main width, so allowing a little extra clearance is advisable. Available for £540 as it is, or £627 if you'd like it waxed. When waxing, the interior of the top section behind the glazed area is usually waxed as well, though this can be discussed depending on your preference. Dimensions: height 61", width 39.5", depth 16" (approximately 155 cm × 100 cm × 41 cm).
