Description

A Nice Antique Edwardian Silver-Plated Neoclassical Tea Caddy featuring a beautifully balanced urn form, twin scroll handles, and a domed lid with finial. Resting on a squared pedestal base and accompanied by a matching silver-plated spoon, it offers timeless sophistication for the breakfast table, tea service, or formal dining display. Fine beaded edging along the lid, body, and base enhances its decorative appeal without overwhelming its clean lines – circa 1905. * Use creatively as a storage container for small sweets, bath salts, or cotton pads on a vanity. Measurements: Height: 8 1/2" (approx. 21.5cm) Square base: 3" (approx. 7.5cm) Length of caddy spoon: 4" (approx. 10cm) Total weight: 435g. In good condition – Light surface marks consistent with age and use. Lid fits well; handles and base are secure. Spoon shows slight signs of wear, adding character without affecting function.
