Description

A graceful set of Victorian walnut dining chairs, dating to around 1870 and beautifully crafted in solid walnut with elegant period detailing. Each chair features a classic balloon back frame with finely carved foliate decoration and open scrollwork to the centre, showcasing the lightness and refinement typical of mid-Victorian design. The walnut has a lovely warm tone with attractive figuring and a rich, aged patina. The serpentine seats are generously proportioned and upholstered in a neutral fabric, finished with traditional decorative gimp braid trim around the edge. The chairs stand on elegant cabriole front legs with carved feet and swept rear supports, giving them a balanced and refined silhouette. Sturdy and well-constructed, these chairs are both decorative and practical — ideal for use around a dining table or as occasional chairs in a bedroom or sitting room.
