Description

A handsome Victorian oak desk chair dating to around 1880. The chair features a newly upholstered black buttoned leather backrest, finished with individually hand-tacked brass studs that complement the warm tone of the oak frame. The shaped oak seat is supported by elegant spindle sides and a sturdy stretchered base, giving both visual appeal and excellent stability. Raised on well-proportioned legs, the chair has a comfortable form suitable for use at a desk, library table, or as an accent piece. A characterful and practical late-19th-century chair, presented in very good condition. W 57cm (22.5") D 66cm (26") H 88.5cm (34.75") Seat H 44.5cm (17.5")
