Description

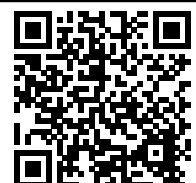

This Art Deco ring dates to the 1920s and is crafted in 18ct yellow gold with a platinum setting — a classic and desirable combination of the period. At its centre sits an emerald cut sapphire measuring 6.2mm x 5mm. The stone displays a sumptuous velvet midnight blue with the faintest green undertone, giving it depth and character in different lights. The cut is beautifully proportioned. Flanking the centre stone are three small single cut diamonds to each shoulder, each approximately 1.3mm. Set within platinum, they provide a delicate shimmer that enhances the sapphire without overwhelming it. The stepped shoulder design is quintessentially Deco, offering both structure and refinement. The ring sits 5.3mm above the finger, with a head measuring 6.5mm x 5.3mm, giving presence while remaining wonderfully wearable. It weighs 3.3 grams and is marked 18CT & PLAT. A sophisticated and enduring design — equally suited as an engagement ring or as a distinguished addition to a fine jewellery collection. Presented in excellent condition and supplied with a presentation box. Details • Period: Art Deco • Circa: 1920s • Centre stone: Emerald cut sapphire – 6.2mm x 5mm • Colour:...
