Description

I haven't had such a lovely pair of "andirons" for a long time.....this fine pair came to me from a private collection and were made around 1740-50they have brass uprights in the form of cabriole legs with ball & claw feet topped off with "urn" finials....they still have the original iron bar supports, which would have been too short to support logs, so it probably would have had a shallow wrought iron basket...very nice quality and in good condition considering all the domestic use they would have had. English C1740-50.
