Description

This very good quality pair of Regency period mahogany caned slipper library chairs, circa 1820, showcases a blend of comfort and elegance. Upholstered in rich leather with deep button tufting, they offer both style and sophistication. The hand-carved scrolling decoration on the arms and legs highlights the craftsmanship of the era. Each chair is raised on tapering faceted legs that terminate in the original brass cup castors, allowing for easy mobility. These chairs not only serve as functional seating but also as stunning decorative pieces that embody the charm of early 19th-century design. Batch 85 62224 UYZZN
