Description

Art Deco Platinum and Diamond Cocktail Watch with Fully Diamond-Set Bracelet, circa 1930 An exceptional Art Deco platinum and diamond cocktail watch, dating to circa 1930, distinguished by its fully diamond-set articulated bracelet and refined geometric design. The rectangular platinum case is set with thirty-two eight-cut diamonds within a finely milgrained border, framing a silvered dial with black Arabic numerals and blued steel hands. The case is flanked by elegant stepped shoulders, transitioning seamlessly into a flexible bracelet entirely set with graduating round-cut diamonds, creating a continuous line of brilliance around the wrist. In total, the watch contains approximately 2.00 carats of diamonds, well matched for colour and clarity, and mounted in finely executed platinum settings characteristic of the finest Art Deco jewellery. The watch is powered by a Swiss jewelled lever movement and is fitted with a concealed clasp and original safety chain. Both highly wearable and collectable, this piece represents the fusion of horology and high jewellery typical of the finest workshops of the period. ?
