Description

19th Century Cast Iron Figural Paperweight – A Humorous Desk Accent A delightful 19th-century cast iron paperweight featuring a cheeky figural design of a gentleman caught in a moment of “morning routine.” Amusing yet tastefully rendered, this well-cast piece showcases the humour and craftsmanship typical of Victorian novelty desk items. Solid and weighty, it is perfectly suited to keeping bills, letters, or documents in place, while also serving as a wonderful conversation starter. The casting detail is crisp, with a rich, aged patina consistent with its period. A charming and slightly irreverent addition to any antique collection, study, or office setting.
