Description

A mid-Victorian carved armchair with a wonderfully bold, historic presence, combining rich 19th-century craftsmanship with decorative medieval revival flair. The frame is deeply carved throughout, featuring scrolling foliage, turned supports and a high back set with a finely woven cane panel that lightens the silhouette while keeping the Gothic influence intact. Key characteristics: • Hand-carved Victorian frame with exuberant detailing, typical of the period's fascination with Tudor and Renaissance revival styles. • Cane-back panel that adds texture and delicacy, contrasting beautifully with the heavier carving around it. • Upholstered seat in a Tudor-style tapestry fabric, woven with stylised flowers and medieval animal motifs, giving the chair a storytelling quality and strong decorative impact. • Twisted arm supports and carved stretchers that reinforce the sense of craftsmanship and solidity. Decorative appeal: This is a statement piece—rich, characterful and full of visual interest. It works beautifully as a standalone accent chair, a hallway feature, or as part of a more eclectic interior where historic texture and pattern are welcome. The combination of cane, ca...
