Description

An antique Edwardian mahogany three-door marquetry inlaid wardrobe with mirror, featuring symmetrical floral marquetry panels, crossbanded doors, and an arched pediment top. The wardrobe stands on ogee feet and is fitted with a large central mirrored door, providing both decorative presence and practical use. Each section of the wardrobe is individually constructed. • The left-hand section opens to reveal hanging space with a shelf above. • The central section, behind the mirrored door, also opens to reveal hanging space with a shelf above. • The right-hand section opens to a traditional pressing cupboard, fitted with sliding shelves. Below, the wardrobe is fitted with two large drawers with brass handles, offering additional storage. The wardrobe is built with a solid oak frame, with the central section of the pediment also in oak, reflecting good quality construction throughout.

Construction & Assembly The wardrobe dismantles fully into separate sections for ease of access into the home. Each door and carcass section is separate, with the top and base also forming individual components, making installation straightforward even in properties with restricted ac...
