Description

An exceptional near pair of late 19th-century carved oak throne chairs, richly detailed and full of period character. Dating to circa 1890, these striking armchairs showcase exquisite craftsmanship with heavily carved foliate and grapevine motifs adorning the tall backs. The impressive high backrests feature intricate pierced carvings framed by bold barley twist columns, topped with ornate cresting and finials. Matching barley twist front legs and stretchers add balance and visual weight, while the carved solid wood seats (with optional fitted cushions) provide sturdy comfort. Their grand proportions and architectural presence make them ideal statement pieces for a hallway, library, dining room, or as decorative accent chairs.
