Description

A beautiful antique upholstered rocking chair crafted in the late Victorian period, featuring elegant carved wooden arms and a richly shaped frame. The chair displays fine decorative carving to the arms and crest rail, along with turned supports and traditional rocking rails. The generously upholstered seat and button back panel provide both comfort and classic period character. The blue upholstery contrasts nicely with the warm tone of the polished wood. This type of rocking chair was commonly used in Victorian and Edwardian homes in sitting rooms, bedrooms, or nurseries and today remains a charming decorative and functional piece. Seat height: 42 cm Very good antique condition. The frame is solid and stable with smooth rocking movement. Upholstery remains clean and presentable with minor signs of age consistent with use.
