Description

A very elegant antique mahogany bergère style wing armchair of generous proportions combining comfort with refined classical design. The chair features a tall shaped back with gently out-swept wings and beautifully flowing arms creating an inviting and comfortable seat. The mahogany frame is well proportioned with clean architectural lines and subtle inlaid detailing to the legs, giving the chair a refined and balanced appearance. The seat, back and inner wings are fully upholstered in an attractive patterned fabric which complements the warm tone of the mahogany and highlights the elegant silhouette of the frame. The upholstery is neatly finished with decorative braid edging enhancing the overall presentation. The chair stands on square tapering legs with delicate inlaid panels terminating in original brass castors which allow for easy movement while adding a classic finishing touch. This is a very comfortable and stylish armchair, ideal for use in a study, library, bedroom or sitting room where it would provide both practical seating and decorative appeal. Condition Report: The chair is in very good antique condition with light age-related wear consistent with norm...
