Description

A charming set of four Victorian mahogany dining chairs, dating to the mid-late 19th century, offering elegant shaping and classic period detail. Each chair features a beautifully curved balloon back with carved scrolling detail and a central decorative splat, showcasing the refined craftsmanship typical of the Victorian era. The rich mahogany frames have a deep, warm tone with a pleasing aged patina. The generously proportioned seats are upholstered in an attractive patterned fabric, finished with light trim, and raised on turned front legs with carved detailing and splayed rear supports for stability. The chairs are sturdy, comfortable, and ready for everyday use. Please note: the dining table shown in related images is not included in this sale but is available separately under its own listing. Good antique condition consistent with age and use. Minor surface wear and marks commensurate with age. Frames are solid and the upholstery remains in good usable order. A handsome and versatile set, ideal for both traditional and contemporary interiors.
