Description

A wonderful example of a chest of drawers from the George II period having a fabulous original colour and surface. Of excellent proportions, made of solid walnut with dovetailed oak-lined drawers and panelled ends and back. Having a two-piece top above two short and three long drawers, decorated with a walnut cross banding and retaining the original brass handles. A rare survivor of English country walnut furniture in very good, untouched condition, having just one replaced handle loop and half a back foot. Circa 1740
