Description

We are delighted to have acquired and offer this magnificent Georgian solid sterling silver wine cooler/cup made by Paul Storr, London 1810. Synonymous with quality, splendor and Royalty; Paul Storr was the most celebrated English silversmith of the early 19th Century receiving commissions from the British Aristocracy and Royalty (more info below). Unsurprisingly, his wares are of the finest quality and his legacy lives on today with many of his works exhibited in museums and in the Royal Collection Trust. This particular article was made during the Regency period and as such presents some of the finest traits and balance between understated elegance and distinct ornamentations. The cup is made from a good gauge of silver with thick walls and a heft which offers a reassuring feel in hand and upon display. The top portion features a most wonderful thick shell & gadroon border with a splendid Regency frieze of anthemion motifs underneath. The midsection presents a plain mirror finish with two hand-engraved cartouches, one with a coat of arms and the other side a presentation engraving reading "A Token of Esteem". Its base features a large and wide foot supporting the...
