Description

A lovely late 19th century writing table made from solid mahogany with a well-worn leather inset top, retaining a beautifully patina throughout. The top is fitted with its original leather writing surface, framed by a gilt-tooled border and a brass gallery at the back, intended to prevent papers from slipping. Below, the table is fitted with two practical drawers, each retaining brass swan-neck handles, with beautifully turned wooden legs. This piece would work equally well as a writing desk, library table, or small console. H: 78 W: 102 D:55 cm
