Description

A beautiful pair of antique medieval-style bedside cabinets dating from around 1900, crafted in richly toned golden oak. These charming pieces feature traditional carved detailing that reflects the strong, decorative style popular in turn-of-the-century furniture. Each cabinet showcases hand-carved panel doors with decorative motifs, a raised back panel with carved accents, and sturdy turned feet. The warm oak grain and aged patina give them wonderful character that only genuine antique furniture can offer. Designed with both style and practicality in mind, the cabinets include a cupboard for storage and a lower open shelf, making them perfect for keeping books, lamps, or bedside essentials neatly organised. Their compact proportions make them ideal as bedside tables, but they would also work beautifully as small side cabinets in a living room, hallway, or reading nook, adding a touch of historic charm to any interior. Dimensions (each): Height: 92 cm Width: 46 cm Depth: 33 cm A lovely pair of early 20th-century oak cabinets with timeless appeal — perfect for anyone who appreciates antique craftsmanship and medieval-inspired design.
