Description

A Very Good Quality 18th Century George II Period Mahogany Chest, Retaining Good Rich Colour And Surface Throughout, The Well Figured Top With Attractive Caddy Moulded Edge, Over Pull Out Slide And Four Long Drawers, Retaining Original Brass Handles, Raised On Elegant Original Shaped Bracket Feet. A chest of drawers of relatively commonly form for the period it was made, this specific chest of drawers does however boast some really great features which help set it apart from the masses. These include the exceptional quality of construction, the use of the well figured, rich mahogany timbers and the practical dimensions. It also has a particularly nice caddy moulded edge to the top which is significantly rarer than the more commonly found thumbnail moulding and a really nice feature. The colour and surface throughout remain excellent and overall it is in good condition with very little restoration, or damage of consequence to speak of. The retention of its original brass handles and its original bracket feet is another indicator of how well loved and cherished this item has been throughout the years of its life. Perfect for use in a variety of different rooms around the...
