Description

Heals of London Antique Teak Garden 'Alexandra' Bench This English solid teak antique garden seat designed and made by Heals of London, known as the Alexandra seat, it is in fantastic, solid condition. All very strong, this Heals antique garden bench seat dates to around 1900-10 and has a slatted back rest, arm supports and seat with lovely turned teak finials to the back and arms. A lovely model, the solid teak timbers are all very solid and intact. This is the best model of Heals antique garden seating with the bench having the double finials to both the back and arms, usually they are just on the back and with shaped bracket supports to the front rail. Made from teak taken from de-commissioned British Battleships. This is a superb example, we have a matching bench available too, never been used outside, so the teak would silver down if used outside. Dimensions Height: 96cm (38.10") Width: 152cm (60.32") Depth: 56cm (22.22")
