Description

Fine 18th century French portrait of a young nobleman traditionally identified as Léopold Clément, Hereditary Prince of Lorraine - (Léopold Clément Charles; 25 April 1707 – 4 June 1723) by Pierre Gobert and studio. The attractive young sitter is painted three-quarter length within an extensive landscape. He has rosy cheeks and rosebud lips and with his doe eyes he greets the viewer with the softest and most beguiling of expressions. He wears an elaborate costume of lace stock and heavily embroidered shimmering hunting jacket. With his gloved hand on his hip, he holds his hat, and with the other his cane with gold handle. Léopold Clément, Hereditary Prince of Lorraine -(Léopold Clément Charles; 25 April 1707 – 4 June 1723) was heir apparent to the throne of the sovereign Duchy of Lorraine. His father was the reigning Duke of Lorraine and his mother a member of the House of Bourbon, then ruling the Kingdom of France. He became the Hereditary Prince at the death of his older brother Louis in 1711, but died of smallpox in 1723 at the age of sixteen, unmarried and without descendants. He was born at the Château de Lunéville to Léopold, Duke of Lorraine and his wife Élisab...
