Description

This impressive and highly decorative late 19th-century pottery figure was made at the Friedrich Goldscheider factory in Wien, Austria. It is beautifully modelled and hand-painted and depicts a Roman classical male figure dressed in a toga and sandals and carrying his supper, a duck in one hand and a pottery jar most likely containing an alcoholic beverage in the other. He has a pleasing, happy expression. This piece is painted in muted tones, which are pleasing to the eye and help to reflect the ancient subject. Factory marks and signed on the reverse, some age-related wear, but generally in good condition. Austrian, circa 1890
