Description

Antique Victorian Clerk's Desk A very unique large twin pedestal desk with a rare writing slope. This is an exceptional example of mid-Victorian craftsmanship, circa 1860 , a twin-pedestal desk that carries the substantial weight and presence of a 19th-century study. Coming to the market for the very first time since its removal from a local period Victorian solicitor's office , the piece offers a rare, direct link to its professional past. Constructed from rich, figured mahogany , the desk measures a generous 1530mm in length by 805mm deep . Crucially, it retains its original French polished finish throughout, which we have carefully cleaned and hand-waxed in our workshop. This has allowed us to preserve a truly fantastic patina —the wood possesses that deep, honeyed glow and "lived-in" character that only 160 years of careful use can produce. The desktop features its original deep purple leather skiver , showing a distinguished level of wear that perfectly complements the aged mahogany. A particularly rare find is the accompanying mahogany writing slope , which sits atop the desk and features its own worn black leather centre. The provenance here is undeniable: the "s...
