Description

1940s 'New Old Stock' Mimo wrist watch. The watch has a good quality hand-winding movement, signed Mimo Fab Suisse, which is working nicely. Mimo (Manufacture Internationale de Montres Or) was founded in 1918 by Otto Graef, a German born watch maker who emigrated to La Chaux-de-Fonds, Switzerland. The Graef family went on to buy, and subsequently rescue, the watch brand Girard Perregaux. This particular watch measures 25mm wide excluding the winding crown, and 31mm high. Originally designed as a man's watch, it could be worn by either a lady or a man. The case is stainless steel and it is in lovely condition, as is the slightly convex lens. The signed dial is in super original condition with original hands, a small subsidiary seconds dial and outer minute markers. The watch retains its original suede strap. The watch comes in a new presentation box.
